New York, Dec. 5,-Twelve teams out first thirty hours of the six-day bicycle race at Madison square garden and still emained in the race when the sun rose today. While twelve of the mon rested, the other twelve pedaled around the track with drawn cheeks, cracking lips and eyes, shielded by dark glasses. Throughout the night there were occasional falls, as some tired rider falled to steer his machine accurately, but there were no serious injuries.

Twelve Teams Tied.

The twelve teams left in the race were tied for first position at 9 o'clock, which was the end of the thirty-third hour. They were then a fraction more than eighty-five miles behind the world's record for thirty-three hours in a six-day race. They were continuously dropping behind the record instead of creeping up. This was partly due to the withdrawal at midnight last night of Charles Vanoni, the Italian rider who was compelled to drop out because he had no one to ride with. After he left the track the others rode slowly, resting themselves for several hours. The other teams which have withdrawn from the race are the German-American team, represented by Krebs of Newark and Peterson of Chicago and the Afro-American team, represented by two New York riders, Dove and Scott.

Miles Behind Record.

Miles Behind Record.

The teams were tied at 8 o'clock tonight and were 131 miles behind the record for the forty-fourth hour of a six-day contest, which is 389 miles, made by Elkes and McHarland in 1890.

A feature was the continuous riding of Arthur McDonald combination, for nearly mine hours. Some of the watchers at the track side declared McDonald was almost twelve hours on his wheel. This the management denied, saying that such a continuous stay upon the track would be contrary to the rules. The riders of the other teams relieved each other regularly, but Galvin had been ailing, and McDonald pluckly maintained the team's position for first honors.
